SOUTH EASTERN
LATIN AMERICANIST

Volume XXXVII, No. 3

Rafael E. Hernández, Editor

ARTICLES
El "doble manifiesto" y el "doble implícito"
en cuatro relatos de Julio Cortázar
Roger B. Carmosino

Ecuador: La crisis perpetua
Herberto Espinoza

History: An escorial: Carlos Fuentes’ Terra Nostra
Joanne Gass

Cuba, June 1993: The Transition to a Mixed Economy
Alfred Padula

The IMF and Anti-Austerity Protest in Costa Rica:
The 1982-83 Electric Rate Strike
Stanley N. Wright and Brad R. Huber

NEWS AND NOTICES

AWARDS

PUBLICATIONS

Quarterly Review of the South Eastern Council on
The shop is a model for the functional design of the shop. It is composed of the Shop Area, the Counter Area, the Office Area, the Storage Area, and the Outside Area. Each area is designed to meet the specific needs of the shop.

Shop Area
- The Shop Area is designed to accommodate a large number of customers.
- The layout is open and airy with a central island for easy access to products.
- The shop is well-lit with natural light and artificial lighting to create a warm and welcoming atmosphere.

Counter Area
- The Counter Area is designed to facilitate quick service.
- The counter is equipped with a modern POS system to streamline transactions.
- The staff is trained to provide excellent customer service.

Office Area
- The Office Area is where the shop management and administration are carried out.
- The office is equipped with computers and other office equipment to support the daily operations of the shop.

Storage Area
- The Storage Area is designed to store a large inventory of products.
- The storage is organized to make it easy to keep track of stock levels.
- The area is well-lit and temperature-controlled to ensure the longevity of products.

Outside Area
- The Outside Area is designed to attract customers.
- The area includes a large parking lot and a seating area for customers to relax.
- The shop is well-marketed with signage and advertisements to attract passersby.

Conclusion
- The shop is a model for functional design and is designed to meet the specific needs of the shop.
- The shop is well-equipped and designed to provide a pleasant shopping experience for customers.
- The shop is positioned to be successful and continue to grow in the future.
Assembly decries US military action in Vietnam as a violation of international law and insists that the operation should be conducted with the United Nations' supervision. The US military has been conducting aerial bombings and ground attacks on the country's infrastructure, including its cities and villages, causing widespread destruction and loss of life.

President Prospero Paredes has called for an end to the violence and has requested international mediation to resolve the conflict. However, the US has refused to negotiate and continues to increase its military presence in the region.

The situation is further complicated by the presence of other countries, including China and Russia, who have expressed their support for the United Nations' mission.

As the tensions continue to escalate, it is unclear whether a diplomatic solution can be reached or if the conflict will continue to worsen.